Concept Note of the Seminar:

Higher education has become both a repository and a creator of knowledge. It has become a focal point for learning in the society and a driving force for economic development of the nation. Empowerment and development of the human resource in a society are guaranteed by the qualitative higher education. Indian higher education system in today's scenario is faced with many challenges like competitiveness, management, financing and reorientation of program by laying equal emphasis on quality of higher education, ethics and values together with the assessment of educational institutions. Paradigm shift in the Indian higher education system may be viewed as a long-term social investment for the promotion of social cohesion, cultural development, economic growth, equity and justice. Indian higher education system can address itself to the global challenges through maintaining the right balance between the need and the demand and channelizing teaching, research and extension activities. It is very pertinent for the higher education system to keep itself abreast with the changing scenario of the needs and expectations of the world at large. Quality of all the parameters and stakeholders, be it the students, faculty, staff, infrastructure etc. will decide the quality and destiny of Indian higher education system as well. All the processes, systems and policies have to be clearly directed towards making improvements in all the relevant dimensions in a sustained manner. The target of democratic access to higher education by making students aware of the options and encouraging them to explore their niches in the global map is easy to achieve as we have been equipped with technology.
